The Mole Antonelliana is a major landmark building in Turin, Italy, named after its architect, Alessandro Antonelli. A mole in Italian is a building of monumental proportions. Construction began in 1863, soon after Italian unification and was completed in 1889 after the architect's death. Originally conceived of as a synagogue, it now houses the Museo Nazionale del Cinema and is the tallest museum in the world.

Piazza Castello is regarded as the heart of the city. The pedestrianized square hosts some significant buildings such as Palazzo Reale, the Palazzo Madama, the former Baroque Teatro Regio and the Royal Library which hosts the Leonardo da Vinci self-portrait.

The Museo Egizio is the only museum other than the Cairo Museum that is dedicated solely to Egyptian art and culture. Many international scholars spend much time pouring over the collections since the decipherer of Egyptian hieroglyphs Jean-François Champollion came to Turin in 1824.
